

BOSTON 2016 historycamp

History Camp is the unconference dedicated to all things history.

Saturday, March 26 at the Harriet Tubman House

566 Columbus Avenue — Near the Mass Ave T stop

Everyone is welcome, but registration is required: HistoryCamp.org

Sessions planned so far include “The False Lessons of the Stamp Act Crisis” — J. L. Bell “Discovering New England’s Hidden Histories in Congregational Church Records” — Jeff Cooper “Who Was Benjamin Franklin?” — Robert J. Allison “Planning the Massachusetts 100th Anniversary of Suffrage” — Colleen Janz “Busing in Boston: Teaching the history of segregation, desegregation, and busing” — Josue D. Sakata “Using Games to Make New History Buffs” — Daud Alzayer “Using Genealogy in Historical Research” — Erik Bauer “Researching Enslaved & Freed Northerners” — Liz Loveland “Digital Archive of Massachusetts Anti-Slavery and Anti-Segregation Petitions” — Nicole Topich “Do You Know Who I Am? The history of Americans on postage stamps” — Henry Lukas “Using the Library of Congress’s Collection of Political Cartoons to Gain Insights into Historical Periods” — Josue D. Sakata “A Recipe for Well-Being: Health and Illness in Colonial New England” — Lori Lyn Price “Flying High: Mining the Pan Am Airways Archives to help students understand history” — Josue D. Sakata “Roman Legionary” — Andy Volpe

Interested in presenting? Details: HistoryCamp.org/Boston.

UNITED SOUTH END SETTLEMENTS

The Harriet Tubman house is a part of United South End Settlements

This will be the fourth History Camp. The first was in Cambridge in 2014. It was held again in Boston last March, and in the fall the first History Camp outside of New England was History Camp Iowa at the Historical Museum of Iowa. Here’s what people had to say after these History Camps: “Excellent sessions, interesting people.” “I hoped it would be good . . . and it was great!” “It was super fun and great to meet some awesome new people.” “Every presentation I attended was interesting and thought-provoking.”